MISS MOROSINI'S FAD IS ODD AND COSTLY TURNOUTS

The Only Woman in the World to Drive a Spike Team---Harnesses That Cost Thousands of Dollars, and Whips and Gowns to Match---Owns Twelve Horses Worth $5,000 or More Each --- She Tells of Road Driving as Exercise for Women.

parade, which takes place next month, will be the competition for a cup offered by Miss Giulia Morosini, daughter of G. P. Morosini, Jay Gould's former partner. Miss Morosini is intensely interested in road driving. At the Speedway parade last year the Speedway Association presented to her a championship ribbon and rosette for making the most novel display and also in recognition of her efforts to make the affair a success.

She is the only woman who has ever been admitted to membership in the association and the only one having a permit to drive three horses abreast on the Speedway. Her friends regard her as the most expert woman whip in this country. Her stable is not only the most costly owned by a woman, but in many respects the most novel.

The harness is all designed by herself with an eye to the rich coloring of the horses. When driving she is clad in colors that match the effects of the harness and elaborate equipage

One famous turnout owned by her is a spike team, also called a unicorn team-a horse in front and two following. The cart used for this team is the only one in America, and was constructed especially for her. This particular style of driving is probably the most difficult for the amateur Exceedingly picturesque the bright coats of the thoroughbreds are, and they are made more effective by the contrast of the color of the vehicle, which is of a dark red, and of the harness, which is made of oxblood red leather, touched off with black and elaborately mounted in solid silver, with the monogram "G. M." in gold. The leader of the team proudly sports on his bridle the blue ribbon, emblematic of the championship of the road.

The cart and harness cost $7,000. With this team is used a Swiss collar, as yet a novel idea in this country. The whip is made to match the turnout, with a nine inch handle of solid gold, and cost $500.

For the prize winning, three abreast team there is a gorgeous royal blue set of harness made of the finest kid. The heavy solid silver mountings are elaborately engraved in fleurs-de-lis.

This harness was made to order recently in London and dyed specially to match the gown of the driver, which is of a shade peculiarly becoming to her type of beauty. The cart is also of the same color, and the turnout cost $10,000. The whip is made to match, with a heavy carved handle of colid gold.

A unique phaeton, imported, is of basket weave with wheels of oxblood red. The canopy top is of deep heavy cream silk. The special span of chestnuts driven with this are adorned with a costly set of harness of real pigskin leather.

The heavy silver mountings are engraved in three leaf clover, and the harness is garnished with sky blue heavy silk braiding and resettes. This particular outfit was also made specially to order at a cost of $8,000. The whip is made of English holly with gold handle engraved in three leaf A Russian sleigh, imported, has a set of harness, made of leopard skins, which cost $6,400. The skins almost cover the horses. When driving in this sleigh Miss Morosini is gowned in costly furs to match. Another Russian sleigh has a harness made of sealskin There are seven vehicles in Miss Morosini's stable, all built to order and all costly. suede are worn by Miss Morosini. There is a set of harness for each vehicle

WIDESPREAD DAMAGE DONE BY A NEBRASKA WOMAN'S EYES.

Marriages and Four Engagements,

Though Only 28-Accused of Getting

$16,000 Wrongfully From a Suitor.

LINCOLN, Neb., April 8 .- The case of Mrs. Scott Smedley of Denver, who was charged here with swindling Joseph Wells, a retired farmer, out of $16,000, is in some respects like that of Mrs. Cassie L. Chadwick, although while the latter dealt in

Mrs. Smedley is tall, slender and 28.

Her features are regular, but she is not pretty. Her voice is rather masculine in one, but well modulated. Her chief weapon has been her eyes, which are seduc-

She was born in the small country town of Perry, Kan., and grew up there. Ten years ago she was married to Emory Willitta, a well to do farmer of Grantville.

Kan. Her maiden name was Edith Sim-

A child was born, and when it was 3 years old Mrs. Willitts told her husband that she wanted to attend college at Lindsberg and study music. Willitts good naturedly as-

A few months afterward J. W. Bundy, a station agent at Ellis, attempted suicide.

He left a note stating that unrequited love for Miss Edith Simmons had led him to kill himself. Mrs. Willitts had concealed from Bundy the fact that she was married.

In fact, she had promised to marry him, but had slipped away just before the woman. He demanded to know the truth.

She sweetly told him that it was true that she was married, but that the tie was not binding because her busband had a legal

She also told James that she had a fine home in Topeka and that a fortune would come to her upon the settlement of her told him that she was single and that her father was Major Sims, a wealthy Topeka stated " - in with variations, to subsequent suitors.

wife living when she married him.

large sums of money, Mrs. Smedley borrowed human hearts.

tive and convincing.

sented to the project.

money lavishly upon her.

wedding.

each turnout. The three abreast team is never driven tandem, in pairs or singly, the spike cart.

In driving only lines of white English | chestnut in color, 15.5 hands high, and

A feature of the next annual Speedway | Ab has been said, there is a whip-to-match | Kentucky thoroughbreds. These horses are never driven by any one but herself. A different set of horses is driven with Not one cost less than $5,000, and several cost more.

She selects and trains her own horses and the spike team is driven only with making trips to Kentucky whenever she desires to purchase. The horses are all web are used, and driving gloves of white match as perfectly as possible. Miss Morosini's stable consists of twelve never uses the same set of horses twice on in her toils, and he proposed marriage.

MISS MORO SINI, HER FAVORITE HORSE GAY PAREE AND HER' BULL TERMER' CHICKIE" WHICH HAS A $ 5,000 DIAMOND COLLAR.

young clerk named Scott Smedley. He ing store. Within a week she landed Smed-was head of the cap department of a cloth-

She told Smedley that her husband was of a distressing character.

ley, and they were married.

Wells took dinner with the couple, and THE UNSOCIABLE HELLO GIRL, equipped with a day force of 220 fiello girls, the Eighteenth street exchange, with a This is an arrangement to which

She professed love for him, but said that marriage must be deferred till later. She hinted vaguely at a large inheritance leys into custody they found Mrs. Smedley over which there were some complications in Colorado Springs. A few minutes after She left Waco and came to Lincoln. Here called at the hotel. He said he had an apshe met, at the hotel table, a handsome

Her arrest he denounced as the result of a plot of her relatives to separate them. He declared that they had always opposed his marriage to her, so she had told him. because she was rich and he but a country dead, but that he had left her a large amount lawyer. of property at Portland, Ore., in trust for their daughter, the income only being hers. Smedley believed her, but was later undeceived when he took a trip to Portland to find out why the income had stopped. Joseph Wells, a pink cheeked elderly farmer who had by hard work and economy accumulated a fortune of about $25,000 in farm lands in Butler county, Neb., had come to Lincoln a short time before and invested part of his money in city property. One of his houses was occupied by the Smedleys. The woman soon found him to be soft hearted, a widower of two years' standing, and the owner of money. She told him that she was very unhappy in her marital relations. Her husband did not treat her properly, and she was going to secure a Wells made haste to offer himself as a substitute when the separation occurred. She admitted that he had touched her heart. She told him also that she was the owner of an orange grove plantation in Florida, and that she needed money to improve it.

divorce.

At the same time, at Salina, she had enchained the affections of J. H. James, She got $150 from him in October of son of a New Mexican mine owner. She last year. She kept borrowing addiaccepted his proposal of marriage and a tional sums on various pretexts until the date for their marriage was set. He spent | sum reached $10,000. She went to Denver and said she was going into the clothing Some one hinted that she was a married business.

On March 17 she came back to Lincoln and asked Wells or $6,000, saying that she had a chance to buy out her partner at a big bargain. Wells hurriedly put his town property on the market, sold it for $2,000 | later in court, when the criminal case was ess than it had cost him, gave her a cashier's check for $6,000, went down to the bank with her, identified her and deceased father's estate. This was the watched her stuff away the bills. first appearance of her stories of great Some of the money had been given by Wells so that she might go away from Linwealth coming to her, which she retailed, coln and get a divorce from Smedley. Later While her love affair wath James was she wrote him that the divorce was coming still on, she met and married a travelling all right, and that as soon as she was free man named Elliott at Manhattan. She she would marry him. The old man sent her money whenever she asked for it. With scrupulous care she insisted that each advance was but a Elliott threw caution to the winds, re- loan and executed a note for it. When signed his job, sent back his sample cases she effected the final loan of $6,000 she told and took her before a preacher and married | Wells that she was free to marry him and her. A reporter tried to interview him as would return the following Sunday She did not come to Lincoln and Wells he boarded a train on his bridal trip, and was rebuffed. In return the reporter told went to Denver to investigate. He found him he had married a woman with a hus- her still living with Smedley in a handband. Elliott investigated, found that some home. They had an automobile, the statement was true and left her two a chauffeur and several servants. Mrs Smedley was dressed expensively.

SEVEN HEARTS WERE HERS. Mrs. Willitts then returned to her husband. who took her back. She remained at home who took her back. She remained at home the husband rather jollied him on the way a little while, and then went to Waco, Tex., the woman had led him on. When they where she met Edgar W. Hooker, a young asked him how much money he had left attorney of Center. She soon had him and he told them $3,000 it dawned upon him that he had been deceived. He returned to Lincoln and caused their arrest.

When the officers went to take the Smedher arrest the young Texas lawyer, Hooker pointment with her to marry her that day.

When informed that she was married he said he did not believe it. She had cold him that through the provisions of an uncle's will she had been compelled to marry Smedley, her cousin, or forfeit her $100,000 share of the estate. She did not love Smedley, however, and had written im (Hooker) that she had secured the livorce and was then living with an uncle on her mother's side in Denver.

Hooker had actually visited her in Danver, it appears, and gone away with his eyes unopened. He said he had known her two years, and she had explained her comparative poverty, while an heiress, by saying that a cruel uncle in Louisville. Ky., was fighting for possession of the

After the arrival of the party in Lincoln in custody of the officers Wells called on her to effect a settlement. She asked for a private interview, and within a few minites she had resumed her old sway over

He called his lawyer in, instructed him that he had decided to withdraw the complaint and accept an offer of settlement made by the woman. His lawyer demurred, but Wells, with his hand resting in the woman's, declared he was satisfied. A little later Wells signed a $10,000 bond

A little later Wells signed a $10,000 bond girls to appear together at an entertain-for the accused couple, and when they ment the news would be printed that an left that night for Denver again he accompanied them. He also signed an affidavit that no false pretence had been em-ployed by the woman to secure the money from him, and when this was presented called, a dismissal was entered. Wells got notes from both parties for his claim, and will seek to force collection on in-operators don't get a chance to become acquainted while on duty.

"In a large dry goods store, say, or in almost any sort of workroom, employees may converse with one another while on duty, and at the lunch hour a great many will meet at the same time under conditions." stallments. A complication in the case developed a little later, when it was found that a man named Emory Willitts is a member of the Smedley household at Denver. This is the to talk to each other. One girl may sit for days beside another without exchanging half a dozen words. The two may be in name of her first husband. Wells said he was introduced to Willitts, the latter being represented as a single man, younger brother of the woman's deceased husband.

Mrs. Smedley is always well gowned, She is an enthusiastic automobilist.

From the St. Augustine Record. As a trophy of their prowess, Messrs, Wilfred and Harry Masters brought home from akes, one measuring 6 feet 6 inches, and chibbing together, apparently, at any time for social entertainments. Such a thing as a social organization among telephone operators does not exist."

The larger snake had twelve rattles and a tron, and the other ten rattles and a button, and the other ten rattles and a button. The cortland street central, which is a hunting trip Wednesday two monster rattlethe same day, all the horses are exercised

After each trip they are carefully rubbed down until their coats are made to look like silk. Water is never permitted to touch

Their stalls are covered with white tiling. and on the floors are mats woven with ribbon. They are fed on sugar once a day. They are never permitted to graze on the

SEMI-OFFICIAL STATEMENTS PUT

HER IN A NEW LIGHT.

Telephone Girl Dances That She Doesn't

Go To-May Not Even Associate With

Her Fellow Employees-Mustn't Chat

in Business Hours-Is a Poor Talker.

The decision of the New York Telephone Company to transfer, so far as possible the hello girls in its employ to the exchanges nearest to their homes may promote more they must struggle along with an undeserved reputation for being sociable. It seems that they are by no means so sociable as the public has been led to believe.

ciability among them. In the meantime "For some reason or other," said the manager of a central exchange, "the tele-pleasures, her habits when on duty and off duty, seem to be a subject of never failing interest to a certain part of the community. This fact has been made use of on occasion to advertise certain entertainments with which the hello girls had

"For instance, I remember having my attention called one day to some handbills which proclaimed that on a particular

Sunday afternoon a dance would be given at an East Side hall, which would be largely attended by the telephone girls from the Cortlandt street exchange. I made a few inquiries and learned that this was the first intimation any of the girls had that they were expected to attend a dance on that

"On another occasion some young men operators at private switchboards and a few of their friends hired a hall, got up a dance and invited, among others, several telephone girls to be their guests, with the result that the affair was reported far and wide as a bello girls' ball.

organization of telephone operators was responsible for the 'ffair."
"With few exceptions," said the head of the telephone school, "the helio girls depend upon their outside environment for their pleasures, not on their business associates, and for this reason telephone will meet at the same time under conditions which foster more or less intimacy. Here it is different.

"When on duty the girls are not allowed different lunch relays not more than twenty or twenty-five go to luncheon at the same time-and even if they do go to the lunch room at the same hour they may not sit

"During the rest periods in the morning and the afternoon I have noticed that the and the alternoon; I have do getting in a bunch and jabbering, prefer to lie down or lounge in a chair and read. There is no operators does not exist."

The Cortland street central, which is at the same table

"In all probability were half a dozen hello day, or any other day, for that matter.

absolutely no connection.

phone girl's work and ways, her social near by in summer, but are stall fed the year his driver is timid and doubtful, or has round. Six men are employed to care for the skill and strength of a master. them and the turnouts.

gives these points:

display intelligence, for a good horse knows on the reins tempting blue grass that covers the field as soon as the reins are picked up whether

"The company for its own sake as well as for the convenience of the girls," said she, "will from now on endeavor to give operators a chance to exchange from a distant central to one nearer their home.

without loss of rank. In some cases, though prefer not to change from a place have grown used to to a strange envate conversation with each other while duty and personal remarks over the wire subscribers were strictly prohibited.

could not understand why young women uld be anxious to become hello girls because the standard which gains rl admission here is high, and they

*Then, although it is true that operators st pay strict attention to their work business hours, the tedium and strain f these hours are relieved by rest periods of several minutes each morning and after-noon, during which they are free to relax completely in a quiet room set apart for their exclusive use, which is furnishe i with sofas, easy chairs, books and peri-

"It is a fallacy, however, to think that e girls in the different exchanges are ell acquainted by means of the telephone or that they have a community of interests

There is really little or no sociability in any of the exchanges and the hello girl's amuse-ments are entirely independent as a rule of her business associates and what they are is known only to herself."

From the Boston Record.

Roosevelt's class of '80, that will figure with the President at Harvard, commencement this year, contains an interesting set of names. Col. Gaston of '80 is in control of the Democratic organization, Quincy of '80 has been Mayor of Boston, Andrews of '80 is a Justice of the New York Supreme Court, so called. Almy Lee and Wendell of '80 are philanthropic sociologists. Brackett of '80 writes sacred music, Hibbard of '80 writes orpolifically) short stories.

Opdycke of '80 translates from the Romance languages and has been decorated by the King of Italy.

Billings of '80 is the Rev. Endicott Peabody's

Gilman has Just been settled as pastor at Canton, Mass., Bob Bacon has retired after making a fortune in State Street and Wall making a lortule in State Street and wan Street.

H. N. Fowler is Greek professor at Western Reserve, A. B. Hart is Harvard's leading professor of history and a voluminous author, It. M. Saltonstail is one of the Suffolk bar's best known attorneys, F. A. Tupper is head master of the Brighton High School, F. E. Whiting was formerly associate business manager of the Boston Herald, and Robert Winsor is the executive man at Kidder, Peabody & Co.'s banking house, W. G. I., Taylor is professor of political science at Nebraska University.

first assistant at Groton school, wher older Roosevelt boys are students. V bury of '80 is secretary of the Boston Commission. Keene of '80 is Consu have shorter hours.

"The mistake which many make when Miss Morosini has studied and driven driving is that they do not change the horses ever since she was old enough to position of their hands or rein hand when hold the reins, and is a practical horse-they should. When they desire to pull up woman. On the subject of driving she they simply draw the hands back and up to the face or perhaps lean far back, "When dealing with a horse one is obliged to keeping the hands always in the same place more freedom, instead of loosing the reins they still keep the hands in the same place on the reins, leaning forward until the head is nearly over the dashboard.

"This is as ludicrous as it is dangerous, for, of course, no control can be had in such a position, or without a correct grasp of "The whip should be held in an easy balance, gripped a foot from the butt; in that position it is most easily carried and ready for instant use.

"Very little change is necessary in driving two horses instead of one. When properly hitched, and the reins carefully adjusted, it is quite as easy to drive a pair as a single horse, and quite as safe for any one having a little experience.

"Three horses are seldom driven abreast in this country. There is no special difference in hitching them, except that the middie horse is driven in shafts, and the pole straps are arranged as nearly as possible like the ordinary team. For the spike or unicorn teams, the harness is substantially the same for the leader as for the wheel horses, the long reins for the leader passing inside the wheeler's bridle.

"Driving has greater advantages then any other exercise. It keeps one in the open air, and the continual action necessary to keep the horses in line brings into play every muscle of the body.

"There is no violent exertion nece as in the pursuit of other sports, which, by the way, frequently do more harm than good. Driving is an art in itself. Just enough excitement is occasioned by the handling of a pair of spirited horses to keep one's brain on the alert, for the driver of a fast team must forever be on his guard. This precaution, however, comes naturally to an expert whip.

"It has been erroneously stated that driving has an enlarging effect upon the hands, and for that reason many women have hesitated to pick up the reins. While continual driving will gradually develop and strengthen the entire body, the grasping of the reins by no means enlarges the

"In fact the hardening of the muscles has a contracting effect upon the hands which makes them smaller and more shapely. After years of driving I find that a No. 6 glove which I have always worn is a triffe large.

As the cowboy lives in his saddle. Miss Morosini lives behind her horses. At 7 A. M. the phaeton with a pair of thorough breds is at the door and she drives her father to the station, ten miles away. She reaches home again at 8:30.

At 10 a fresh relay of horses is at the door, perhaps the spike trio. These Miss Morosini may drive to the Speedway. The horses are exercised, and novel feats in driving are practised until lunch time.

After luncheon the favorite three abreast team is exercised on the Speedway until it is time for Miss Morosini to meet her father at the train-a duty she always performs, for she and her father are devoted to each other. Wherever she goes, her father is her constant companion.

Aside from her fame as a whip, Miss Morosini is reputed to spend $100,000 a year on her gowns, and her jewels are valued at $1,000,000. But, notwithstanding the impression all these facts and tastes might give, she is of a retiring disposition.

Elmhurst, her home at Riverdale on the Hudson—embracing about 1,000 acres—is a short distance from the Speedway, and affords her ample opportunity to pursue the Eighteenth street exchange, with a force of 130, and the Thirty-eighth street exchange, with about the same number of girls, are the three largest in New York, and so far the personnel of the working force has represented almost every part of Greater New York, as well as many points in New Jersey. The chief operator at the Cortland street central said the other day that it would be almost impossible for many of her staff to get together out of business hours, for the reason that their The manner in which monarchs are paid their salaries varies considerably. The Emperor of Russia, for instance, says Pearson's Weekly, is the only European sovereign who is entitled to draw on the revenues of the country over which usiness hours, for the reason that their omes were scattered over Long Island. he rules whenever he pleases and to almost an unlimited extent. ew Jersey and localities as far north as

Receive Their Allowances.

All the vast sums accruing from various forms of taxation in Russia are banked to the credit of two officials named the Imperial Treasurers, who discharge all the iabilities of the Russian Government.

The Czar, however, has the first call upon the money paid into the imperial treasury and draws upon it whenever he wishes by simply directing the treasury officials to lodge so much money to his private account, giving them a voucher for the vironment. They are young and don't mind doing a little travelling, except in severe storms, to reach their work."

"A man remarked to me, the other day," said a central manager, "that inasmuch as amount. Under the Russian constitution the Czar is entitled to receive a seventh share of the revenue of the country, and though he, as a matter of fact, never draws upon the told him this.
"The pay of the hello girls is better than treasury to this extent, the Emperor of Russia is yet by far the best paid and the pay of the average young girl em-ployed in a store, the companionship is apt to indicate a higher average of excelwealthiest of European monarchs. The Emperor of Germany is in receipt of salary of $100,000 per annum from the State, but His Imperial Majesty has, of course, many other ways of supplementing this pay, which would be a very poor one for the sovereign of a great Power. The salary is paid into the Emperor's private banking account twice a year, the check for it being signed by no fewer than the Kaiser himself. The Emperor also receives a "military and naval" allowance, which amounts to a big sum, and the expenses in connection with the maintenance of the royal household at Potsdam are paid quarterly by the State treasury. King Edward receives a quarterly check from the Paymaster-General for his salary as monarch; the check is what is known as a negotiable receipt, and is sent to the keeper of the privy purse, by whom it is signed on behalf of the King. and then lodged to the credit of his Majesty's private banking account.

The Emperor of Austria is put to some personal inconvenience before he can obtain his salary, owing to the love of maintaining ancient customs and ceremonies that prevail in the Austrian court. On the 1st of June and 1st of December the Austrian monarch pays a visit to the office of the State treasury, where he is received by three important officials.

One of these officials then reads out a document to the monarch, reminding him of the many duties he owes to the State, and experience him to the faithful performance of the contract of the faithful performance of the contract o and exhorting him to the faithful performance of the same. The document concludes with a mention of the amount of money that the Emperor is entitled to receive from the State to main-tain him in a position of such great dignity becomingly. The Emperor is then asked if the amount is sufficient, and on his replying to the question in the affirmative, is given a receipt to sign for the money, which is, in due course, lodged to the credit of the imperial account The King of Portugal's salary is never aid to him direct, but is vested in the care of three officials, upon whom the King | a club just in time, his is an arrangement to which the King of Portugal has a distinct objection, but as it is all very old established custom his Majesty would probably have some fished the three purse keepers, as these officials are called, receives £500 per anoum, which the King of Portugal has to pay out of his own pocket, so that the arrangement costs the King £1,500 a year which could be very easily saved by the dismissal of such entirely needless officials dismissal of such entares, as the purse keepers.

The Sultan of Turkey has no allowance or salary; he simply informs the Grand Vizier when he wants money, and that official has to see that the amount required forthcoming promptly, otherwise it is forthcoming promptly, otherwise it is is forthcoming promptly, otherwise ft more than likely he might lose his head.

EARLY CROP SNAKE STORIES. Missourian Kills 46 Rentlies.

From the Clinton Democras.

While blasting rocks in his pasture near Clinton the other day, Joe Harness found a den of snakes in which there were forty six reptiles of various sizes were torpid from cold [and Harness killed them easily.

Garter Snake Enlivens School. Fork correspondence Philadelphia Record.

A garter snake two feet long created haves in the Seitzville school and caused the girls to spring to the tops of the desks while the boys were despatching it

Fight With Moccastn From the Augusta Chronicle. O. I. Wolfe had a narrow escape yesterday from being seriously injured, and he is congratulating himself on his escape. Mr. Wolfe was out near the old glass works when he heard a noise in the bushes just before him, and the next minute he was horrifled to see a big moccasin spring at him and twine itself about his leg. Mr. Wolfe kicked out vigorously and shook the snake loose, and then dealt it a crushing blow as the serpent returned to the battle.

In describing the affair Mr. Wolfe said it was one of the largest highland moocasine he had ever seen, and that he could not account for his escape from being bitten Indianian Has the Proof.

Marion correspondence Cincinnati Enquirer. John Strauss, a farmer of temperate habite and whose veracity is not questioned, tells the first snake story of the season He said: "I cut a large amount of stove wood last summer, threw it in a pile and left it until this winter, when I began to haul it to Marion and sold it on the market. Yesterday while loading wood on a wagon from the pile I found a large coil of snakes contain ing about fifty copperheads. They were helpless and unable to make any resistance on account of the cold, and I killed them ome of them measured seven feet in length Later I discovered another coil of blacksnaker a few feet from the copperheads. It contained about the same number, but the snakes were resistance. "I have preserved the snakes as proof of my statement, as some of my friends may estion the story, and if they do I can produce the goods," Rattler Showed Fight.

Altoona correspondence Pittsburg Post in apparently dead four foot rattlesnake Joshua Butler brought to his home here for its akin and rattles thawed out

Miner John McMahon killed the snake with